

Contents

| | |
|--|------|
| Acknowledgments | ix |
| Illustrations | xiii |
| Foreword: Aristotle in the Pharmacy: The Ambitions of Camilla Erculiani in Sixteenth-Century Padua, by Paula Findlen | 1 |
| Introduction: Camilla Erculiani, a Woman and a Natural Philosopher, by Eleonora Carinci, translated by Hannah Marcus | 51 |
| Note on the Translation, by Hannah Marcus | 107 |
| Camilla Erculiani, Letters on Natural Philosophy , translated by Hannah Marcus | 109 |
| To Philosophers | 109 |
| To the Most Serene Queen Anna, Queen of Poland, Grand Duchess of Lithuania, etc. | 109 |
| To Readers | 111 |
| By Andreas Schonaeus of Głogów, A Song of Praise | 113 |
| To the Most Excellent Signor Georges Guarnier, in which is discussed the natural cause of the Flood and the natural temperament of man | 113 |
| Letter from the Most Excellent Signor Georges Guarnier to Signora Camilla Herculiana, in which is discussed the denial of the Flood | 126 |
| Letter from Camilla Herculiana to the most excellent Signor Georges Guarnier, in which is discussed the truth of the Flood and the natural formation and appearance of the rainbow | 136 |
| To the magnificent and most excellent Signor Knight, the Signor Martin of Berzeviczy, Transylvanian Chancellor of the holy majesty of the invincible King Stephen of Poland | 143 |
| Sebastiano Erizzo, Letters to Camilla Erculiani , translated by Hannah Marcus | 149 |
| Giacomo Menochio, Consilium 766: In Defense of Camilla Erculiani , translated by Hannah Marcus | 155 |
| Bibliography | 169 |
| Index | 193 |